

The Girl Wot Draws the Curtains

I'm the girl wot draws the curtains
And I wanted just to say
That I'll do my best this evening
So that everyone's okay.
'Cos if the theatre's empty,
or if the seats are full,
The girl wot draws the curtains
is always on the pull!
It doesn't really matter
if no-one knows I'm there.
It's really not important – no,
I really never care.
But if by chance they see me
I always get applause
Because, I think, the audience
Appreciates my drawers!
Now, pulling these 'ere curtains
is no mere 'bagatelle.'
They're heavy and quite troublesome
You have to do it well.
You have to be quite muscular –
there can be no excuse.
It takes a girl to do it –
a bloke would be no use!
So, thanks for your attention
I hope you like the show.
But now at least I've said "Hello"
And you will always know
That when the dance has ended
Or when a scene must start
The girl wot pulls the curtains
Is giving it her heart!
